"Happy New Year"

Cary Library

legiate education at what was then Colby University. In 1876 he was admitted to the Penobscot bar, and since began the practice of law at Springfield. He removed to Caribou in 1883, and two years later was elected Judge of Probate for Aroostook County. He was a member of the Legislature in the House, in 1889 and 1891, and in the Senate in 1897 and 1899, each time serving upon the Judiciary Committee. In the latter year he removed to Bangor, and was in the practice of his profession there at the time of his death.

Judge Stearns' thorough knowledge of the principles of the common law and his ability as a trial lawyer, soon made for him a place in the front rank of his chosen profession, and at his death he was generally recognized as one of the leading lawyers of the State. In his dealings with clients, counsel and the Court, Judge Stearns was the soul of honor. It seems fitting to the members of this bar, where he spent so many years of his early life, that they should ask to place upon the records of the court some memorial of their love for him and their respect for his character and attainments. Therefore, be it Resolved, That we recall his memory with love, his career with pride, and his death with sorrow. His literary, as well as his legal learning, and his rare powers as a conversationalist drew to him all those who met him, either in a social or in a professional way.

His absolute integrity, his ability, his clear perception of right and wrong, and his sense of the responsibilities of office, made him a faithful public servant, always conscious of the duty which he owed to the people who entrusted him with public office; while his devotion to his profession, his high ideals of practice, his attainments of a lawyer and an advocate in Court, as well as his conservative Statesmanship and great power as an orator in public life, made him living, trusted and loved by all, and at his death mourned not only by his associates at the bar, but by countless friends in every walk of life, who had the high privilege of his personal and intimate acquaintance.

Resolved, That these resolutions be presented to the Court for its action.

J. Stanley Estes
May it please your Honor:
By direction of the committee of the bar appointed for that purpose, I beg to submit the following resolutions upon the death of brother J. Stanley Estes, and I move that they be spread upon the records of our Bar Association.

Whereas, that on the second day of July 1914, in the city of Washington, D. C., the Angel of Death entered the home of our brother, the late John Stanley Estes, and bore his immortal spirit to

"The undiscovered country, from whose bourne no traveler returns;" and

Whereas, we, the members of the Aroostook Bar, desire to place upon record the deep sense of loss which we feel in the death of our Brother, and to express our appreciation of his virtues.

Therefore, be it Resolved: That while we deplore the death of our brother at any age when as we mortals view it—he should have had many more years of usefulness before him, and deeply mourn his loss, yet we find much consolation in the contemplation of his character, as a citizen and friend, his quiet, unobtrusive, but attractive and pleasing companionship, and his rugged honesty, integrity, fidelity and uprightness in every relation of life.

Resolved: That we cannot but regret that our brother chose not to practice his profession of the law, for we feel confident that had the brilliant mind with which nature endowed him been devoted to the practice of the law, he would have achieved an enviable reputation at the bar as that which he attained as a court and legislative stenographer.

Resolved: That we extend to the bereaved family of our Brother, our sincere sympathy in their great loss, and that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to them as a token of our regard.

Aroostook Farm

There will be a meeting of its friends to consider ways and means, at the Presque Isle Board of Trade Rooms Tuesday, Dec. 29, at 2 P. M. A committee appointed by the Aroostook Pomona Grange asked the Legislature of 1913 for an appropriation of $20,000 for the purchase and equipment of a farm to be under the management of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, suited for experimental agriculture in Aroostook County, and $10,000 a year for maintenance. The Act as passed made an appropriation of only $10,000 for the purchase, equipment and maintenance of a farm for two years. The committee on purchase named in the Act consisted of Chas. D. Woods, Orono; Gouverneur W. Cleaves, Presque Isle; Osgood B. Griffin, Caribou; Clarence A. Day, Westfield; Columbus Hayford, Presque Isle; Chas. C. Peterson, Ashland; Wm. A. Martin, Houlton; and Clarence A. Powers, Fort Fairfield. It speedily became evident to the committee that $10,000 would not be sufficient to purchase a farm such as the friends of the Aroostook County agriculture had in mind. At one time it seemed as though it would be impossible to make any purchase under the Act. But the citizens of Presque Isle came forward with a proposition that if the committee found a farm within the town adapted to the purpose of the experiments that they would temporarily supply the money necessary to complete the purchase. As a result Aroostook Farm was purchased and through the generous gift of $2500 for equipment by the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad preliminary experimental work was begun in 1914. The farm will be utilized by the United States Department of Agriculture for its potato work in the future. But that work is necessarily of a general nature and not primarily planned for Aroostook County needs.

If in the future there is to be any experimental work on the farm worth while to the County there must be an appropriation sufficient to employ properly qualified scientific men to carry out the investigations.

It seems to be necessary to ask for two things from the next Legislature: An appropriation of $18,000 to complete the payment for the farm; and not less than $10,000 a year for maintaining experimental work thereon.

In order that there may be unity of thought and action it seems desirable that as many as possible of the people who are interested in Aroostook agriculture attend the meeting arranged by the Aroostook Pomona Grange and Aroostook citizens to be held at the Presque Isle Board of Trade Rooms at two o'clock on the afternoon of December 29, 1914.

Alaska Coal Satisfactory

Formal announcement of successful naval tests of coal from the government-owned Matanuska fields in Alaska has been made by Secretary Daniels before the naval committee of the House. Trials by the cruiser Maryland Mr. Daniels said, had demonstrated that the Matanuska coal was as good as any to be found, and pointed the way to an adequate supply of fuel on the Pacific coast as soon as transportation facilities are available.

The results of this test, over which navy officials have been exulting quietly for nearly two weeks, were particularly gratifying because disappointing experiments with coal from the Behring fields a year ago had dimmed hopes that the rich deposits in Alaska ultimately would meet all of the government's demands for fuel on the west coast.

"The firing was easy and the steam pressure was easily maintained," said the secretary in telling the story to the committee. "The coal is said to have burned like pine knots."

Game Law Violations

The following communication in a recent issue of the Commercial contains much good for thought.

I was for many years a guide for hunting and fishing parties but the high license for killing game legally in open season and the lack of enforcement of laws for protection make the summer deer killed in close season cost the poacher less than the true sport who would pay a reasonable license if the laws were justly enforced. I never could see or understand why the non-resident who would come to Maine woods in the fall, get his game honestly and honorably should, pay all the expense of enforcement of fish and game laws while the summer fisherman stays all summer with fishpole and gun and pays nothing.

It would seem more just and reasonable to me to make a fishing license $10 a season, $1.00 for 20 days to fish without a gun and reduce the open season hunting license to $10 and have the game protection laws enforced.

Judge J. S. Keyes once ruled if a man was in the woods with a gun he was hunting and he should fine him accordingly. The defendant claimed as a citizen the right to bear arms. The judge said "Keep in the middle of the road then. You have no right to carry a gun in your neighbor's woodlot in closed season on game."

I notice the fish and game commissioner, also the fish and game protective association of Maine favor a closed season of five years on moose, which means the summer cottager and tourist may have what few moose there are left; or in other words puts a premium on poaching. There will be then no moose left for the honest sport of true type.

It is strictly against the laws of Maine to use jacklights while shooting game, yet it is stated far more than half the casualties of man being mistaken for deer are due to jacking, to say nothing of the horses and cattle killed by this foolhardy practice all summer long. Yet, is there a case on record of the jacker being prosecuted? I think not. There are more deer and moose killed under jack light than any other way.

The game laws already provide enforcement by county officers other than wardens, and some of these officials are among the worst poachers. I have never known of one of them trying to prosecute a violation of game laws. Now would it not be wise for the fish and game commissioners to consider a more thorough way of enforcement in our rural towns of the laws than to keep making more laws with no enforcement.

Buy Maine Seed Potatoes in Certified Sacks Only

The farmers of New Jersey, other Middle Atlantic States, and the Southern States are warned by the department to see that the seed potatoes they buy bear the white label of the Potato Inspection Service of this department. This label is placed on each container and certifies that the potatoes have been examined by Federal inspectors and found free from powdery scab, that they were grown on farms free from, and have not in any way been exposed to this disease.

They are warned against the use of table potatoes for planting purposes, as these, even though they do not show the disease, may have been exposed to powdery scab. Table potatoes are usually shipped from Maine in bulk and the car carries a blue certification tag, while seed potatoes are in sacks or other containers of a capacity not to exceed 180 pounds, and each container is separately certified.

Some dealers have been buying table stock and selling it for seed. These men are not violating any law but they are exposing their customers to the risk of the introduction of a dangerous disease and a quarantine should the powdery scab be introduced.

The white seed certificate relates only to freedom from powdery scab, but potatoes so certified are likely to be of better quality and less mixed than table-stock potatoes. The supply of certified seed potatoes in Maine is ample, and the price this year is low, so that there is no excuse for planting table-stock potatoes.

The department also states that the rigid inspection and other precautions thrown around certified seed stock from quarantined districts make such stock as safe as potatoes from noninfected areas, and often better selected.

Not All Gloom in Dixie.

South Carolina has at least one optimist who cannot see anything bearing the slightest resemblance of calamity in the present war crisis in cotton. His viewpoint is interesting and cheering:

Cotton represents less than one-third of the South's agricultural products. The South's agricultural products are quite equaled by her manufacturing products and are equaled again by the products of her interest in lumbering, fisheries, transportation, mining, and so forth. Altogether the South's normal income exceeds nine billions of dollars a year. The reduction in the price of cotton involves a loss of about three hundred and seventy-five million dollars, or only about four per cent of her total income.

Several states—Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri—are absolutely unhurt, or practically unhurt, by the fall in the price of cotton, for the reason that they produce very little of the staple. Louisiana and Florida are immensely benefited by the war, which has increased the price of their cereals, sugar, fruits and livestock. The injury to cotton is more than offset by the benefits from other sources.

The Cotton Belt is injured, and here the loss will run perhaps as high as ten per cent of the normal income from all sources. But what is lost to the farmer is gain to the manufacturer to a considerable degree, because the South buys from herself three million bales of cotton a year, or one-fifth of the crop. Very likely this year the South will take from twenty-two to twenty-three per cent of her cotton crop.

One other thing: The war has increased the prices of commodities raised in the Cotton Belt other than cotton, and to such a degree that the losses on cotton are quite largely reduced by the gains on other commodities.

For the last ten years the South has been immensely paid for raising cotton and there has been a large accumulation of money, putting the farmers in excellent position, so that a large percentage of them can hold their crops through till next season if they desire to do so. There have been too many extravagant statements concerning the danger to the South.

This is a rather crisp summing up, logically presented. It may not bring much cheer to the man who is sorely pinched, but it should enable those who have been misled by hysterical statements to get a view of actual conditions in the South, taking all economic producing factors into consideration.

Parental Bad Example Cause of Spiritual Decadence

By Rev. Dr. KARL REILAND, Rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, New York

REGARD with no more apprehension the ignorant excesses of misled crowds crying their unthinking themes than I do the EXTRAVAGANT OSTENTATION, THE OVERWEENING ESTIMATE PLACED UPON A WHIRL OF SOCIAL EXCITEMENTS AMONG THE EDUCATED, FORTUNATE AND RICH, SO CALLED.

The children and the homes wherein they should be nurtured and protected are sadly disturbed by parental bad examples.

What a commentary upon the decadence of those sturdy home influences which, with religion at the heart, safeguarded to parents and children alike their rightful happiness and integrity of character!

MAKES BACKACHE QUICKLY DISAPPEAR

A Few Doses Relieves All Such Miseries. Bladder Weakness, Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism Promptly Vanish

It is no longer necessary for any one to suffer with backaching, kidney trouble, have disagreeable bladder and urinary disorders to contend with, or be tortured with rheumatism, stiff joints, and its heart-wrenching pains, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely relieves all such troubles.

Croxone is the most wonderful remedy yet devised for ridding the system of uric acid, and driving out all the poisonous impurities which cause such troubles. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. It acts on the principle of cleaning out the poisons and removing the cause.

It soaks right in through the walls, membranes and linings, like water in a sponge, neutralizes, dissolves, and makes the kidneys sift out and filter away, all the uric acid and poisons from the blood, and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong, healthy and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, the very principle of Croxone is such, that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it.

If you suffer with pains in your back and sides, or have any signs of kidney, bladder troubles, or rheumatism, such as puffy swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired, and run down, or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone will quickly relieve you of your misery. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

Christmas Dinners.

The Salvation Army Barracks on Mechanic St. was a busy place Christmas Eve, when the baskets containing the Christmas dinners to Houlton's needy poor were distributed.

Teams and messengers were busy until a late hour distributing the baskets.

About 50 baskets loaded with all the good things necessary to make a genuine Christmas dinner went to families who otherwise would have gone without, and many families have cause to feel thankful that such an organization as the Salvation Army exists.

The work of collecting funds and supplies for this annual occasion means a great deal of work for the officials, but the liberal response for contributions was most gratifying.

A Christmas Tree for the children on Saturday evening with plenty of toys, candy and warm clothing, was another feature, prepared by the efficient officers of the Army, which was greatly enjoyed by a large number of children connected with the organization.

The annual meeting of the Maine Automobile Association was held at Portland this week and was one of the most successful gatherings ever held by this Association. Notwithstanding the storm, the State of Maine Room at the Falmouth Hotel where the session was held, was crowded to capacity and from a good roads as well as from every other standpoint, the session was a great success.

Notable guests were present including Governor-elect Oakley C. Curtis; His Honor, Mayor William M. Ingraham of Portland; C. S. Stetson, Werthy Master of the Maine State Grange; Hon. Lyman H. Nelson, chairman of the State Highway Commission; Philip J. Deering, State Highway Commissioner; Paul D. Sargent, Chief Engineer of the Commission and a majority of the leading good roads advocates and workers of the State. Almost every section of Maine was represented at this meeting and it was declared by many to be the greatest good roads gathering that has ever been held in this State.

Directors were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Hiram W. Ricker, Poland; Elmer A. Doten, Portland; Charles A. Hill, Belgrade; William N. Taylor, Portland; Silas B. Adams, Portland; Stanley B. Beebe, Rumford; Dr. Charles M. Sleeper, Berwick; Charles S. Hieborn, Augusta; Leith S. Black, Houlton; Prof. George T. Files, Brunswick; David Talbot, Rockland; and William D. Pennell of Lewiston. The directors will meet within a short time and elect officers.

Several plans for Winter legislation were brought up and the questions of lights on all vehicles, and State control of speed on State highways will probably be put into the form of bills and presented to the Legislature. C. S. Stetson, in his address, brought out the fact that the Maine State Grange and the Maine Automobile Association are working for the same end, that of the best interests of the State so far as its highway policy is concerned. He praised the work of the Association and declared that it had been responsible for more good roads agitation and development than any other single organization in the State.

Several matters of importance were discussed but their decisions were left with the board of directors which will meet within a short time.

Get SCOTT'S EMULSION for your nerves—nothing equals or compares with it, but insist on the genuine SCOTT'S.

Fauntleroy, but I can outpace you, out-walk you, put you on your back or lick you with my fists right now."

John Bellew thrust out his hand. "Christopher, my boy, I believe you can do it. I believe you can do it with that pack on your back at the same time. You've made good, boy, though it's too unthinkable to believe."

"Kit made the round trip of the last pack four times a day, which is to say that he daily covered twenty-four miles of mountain climbing, twelve miles of it under 120 pounds. He was good, hard and tired, but in splendid physical condition."

One problem bothered him. He had learned that he could fall with a hundredweight on his back and survive, but he was confident that if he fell with that additional fifty pounds across the back of his neck it would break it clean. Each trail through the swamp was quickly churned bottomless by the thousands of packers, who were compelled continually to make new trails. It was while pioneering such a new trail that he solved the problem of the extra fifty.

The soft slush surface gave way under him. He floundered and pitched forward on his face. The fifty pounds crashed his face into the mud and stuck clear without snapping his neck. With the remaining hundred pounds on his back he arose on hands and knees. But he got no farther. One arm sank to the shoulder, pillowing his chest in the slush. As he drew this arm clear the other sank to the shoulder. In this position it was impossible to slip the straps, and the hundredweight on his back would not let him rise.

On hands and knees, sinking first one arm and then the other, he made an effort to crawl to where the small sack of flour had fallen. But he exhausted himself without advancing, and so churned and broke the grass surface that a tiny pool of water began to form in perilous proximity to his mouth and nose.

He tried to throw himself on his back with the pack underneath, but this resulted in sinking both arms to the shoulders and gave him a foretaste of drowning. Then he began to call for help. After a time he heard the sound of feet sucking through the mud as some one advanced from behind.

"Lend a hand, friend," he said. "Throw out a life line or something."

It was a woman's voice that answered, and he recognized it.

"If you'll unbuckle the straps I can get up."

The hundred pounds rolled into the mud with a soggy noise, and he slowly gained his feet.

"A pretty predicament," Miss Gastell laughed at sight of his mud covered face.

"Not at all," he replied airily. "My favorite physical exercise stunt."

He wiped his face, flinging the slush from his hand with a snappy jerk.

"Oh," she cried in recognition, "it's Mr.—Mr. Smoke Bellew."

"I thank you gravely for your timely rescue and for that name," he answered. "I have been doubly baffled. Henceforth I shall insist always on being called Smoke Bellew."

The Arctic came down again. Snow that had come to stay lay in thickets on the ground, and the ice was forming in quiet pools despite the fierce gales that blew. It was in the late afternoon during a full in such a gale that Kit and John Bellew helped the coastie load the boat and watched it disappear down the lake in a snow squall.

"And now a night's sleep and an early start in the morning," said John Bellew. "If we aren't storm bound at the summit we'll make Dyer tomorrow night, and if we have luck in catching a steamer we'll be in San Francisco in a week."

Their camp for that last night at Linderman was a melancholy remnant. Everything of use, including the tent, had been taken by the coastie.

Only once during supper did Kit speak. "Avuncular," he said, "after this I wish you'd call me Smoke. I've made some smoke on this trail, have I not?"

A few minutes later he wandered away in the direction of the village of tents that sheltered the gold rushers who were still packing or building their boats. He was gone several hours, and when he returned and slipped into his blankets John Bellew was asleep.

general all around snorter. Goodbye!" But John Bellew was dazed and could only mutter, "I don't understand."

"They say the bald face grizzlies are thick in the Yukon basin," Kit explained. "Well, I've got only one suit of underclothes, and I'm going after the bear meat, that's all!"

GOOD ROADS DON'T.

Don't just enthuse over the subject. Get busy and fuse also.

Don't just say you die on one character of construction. There are no "wear forever" roads.

Don't stop your interest when the road is built. "The highway needs your kindly interest and care at all times."

Don't make ruts with your wheels. It tears up what you have aided in building and gives the road a pain in its back.

— Homer D. Wade, Secretary Texas Good Roads Association.

ROADS AND COUNTRY SCHOOLS

Good Highways Mean That Schools Are Well Attended.

"Good roads and consolidated graded country schools are the greatest need of this nation," says Mrs. Robert Baker of Washington. "More than $205,000,000 will be spent on public roads in the states the coming year. It is time women were busy on a public service which affects them and their children so intimately."

Mrs. Baker, helped by such women as Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, Miss Julia Lathrop and other leading women of the nation, has formed a women's auxiliary to the American Highway association.

"We are working side by side with the National Congress of Mothers, as well we might. Just think," says Mrs. Baker, "that in this country only a trifling more than one-half of the population of school age are in school, and that only for six months of the year. In Japan 98 per cent of the children attend school nine months of the year."

"Of course various factors affect school attendance and the amount of illiteracy among the people of a community. But it is a fact worth considering that in five states chosen at random for their high percentage of improved roads the average attendance of enrolled pupils is 77.14, and in five states chosen for their notoriously muddy, rocky, neglected roads the average attendance of enrolled pupils is 59.16."

The women's auxiliary has been looking up these statistics and it finds that in five states where the percentage of improved roads is 70.55 the percentage of illiterates born of white native parents is 34, while in five states where the percentage of improved roads is only 1.61 the percentage of illiteracy among native whites is 4.75. It certainly does look as if good roads led to literacy.

You can't make a child go to school when going means tramping long distances through the snow and mud. Some of them go of course, if they want book learning badly enough. They go, get awful colds in the going, and then they snuffle and cough in the boxed up schoolroom and bestow their germs upon all the other children. Also lack of good highways has led to more than one accident when railways were near.

"The ideal to be aimed at is roads good enough for roller skating and well built consolidated schools. There are about 2,000 of these consolidated schools, and this number could easily be doubled many times over," says Mrs. Baker. "Experience has shown that 800 children can be educated in one of these consolidated schools at a smaller expense than can 800 children in eight small one room schools, and as to the better quality of the education there can be no question."

"The little red schoolhouse may be picturesque in poetry, but in real life it is smelly and ill ventilated, full of wood smoke and had discipline and productive of chilblains and imperfect spellers. Farmers want graded schools for their children, and rightly. Many give up their farms and move to town for the sake of their graded school. So if we want to keep up our food supply it behooves us to bring the graded school to the farm, and that is just what better roads will do."
